

Retro #5: Brother Stephen O'Hanlon, 1921

On February 4, the Brothers of the Sacred Heart throughout the US remember Br. Stephen O'Hanlon in their community prayers on the anniversary of his death in 1821. In 1882 Br. Stephen O'Hanlon began a 26-year teaching career at the St. Stanislaus free Day School, often called the Back School. Br. Stephen sported a long, snow-white beard which earned him the nicknames Uncle Sam and Rip Van Winkle. Many of his former students in Bay St. Louis referred to the school as "Rip's University." In his memory of their beloved teacher, they donated a stained glass window in Our Lady of the Gulf Church.

Br. Stephen with some of his students in 1911 outside the Back School